

Planet and Prosperity

During the month of September, training programs were conducted on good agricultural practices. The trainings were focused on emphasizing the most effective and responsible way to apply fertilizers for soil and plant absorption, following the sustainable practices and taking care of natural resources.

Continuing with the environmental commitment acquired, we continued with periodic environmental studies having our sustainability policy as the focus, complying with sustainable, yet economically and socially feasible, projects that make reasonable use of natural our resources. We thrive every day to continue to operate responsibly and comply with all established national and international regulations.

As part of our community relations program, we started the introduction of electric energy in the community of Buenos Aires. The project is being held together with local authorities to assure a smooth process and the prompt installation of electric cables and equipment.

Also, we are working alongside Pro Asfalto Committee and the national Ministry of Communications, Infrastructure and Housing – CIV – to provide our communities of influence with asphalted routes, improving infrastructure and connectivity in the area. During the month, we gave maintenance to 8 kms of municipal roads in the community of Eden, continuing with our infrastructure community program.

People

Complying with our training program incentive and human rights policy, five different Occupational Health and Safety trainings were given throughout the month, certifying more than 110 extraction mill collaborators.

The topics taught during these trainings were:

- Clothing and footwear use
- First aid kits usage
- Safety guidelines for jobs at heights and elevations
