

Advancing Sustainable Palm Oil Practices

At Industria Chiquibul, we continue working towards transforming the palm oil sector into a driver of sustainable development for Guatemala and the region.

As part of our commitment, we recently participated in two key international forums:

The 21st International Palm Oil Conference, held in Cartagena, Colombia; and The Palm Oil Collaboration Group (POCG) meeting

During these events, we actively contributed to the implementation of the Report Framework, which centers on three essential sustainable pillars:

- No deforestation
- Full traceability
- Respect for human rights

While the POCG is globally led by Malaysia and Indonesia, Latin America is increasingly taking a prominent role in shaping mechanisms that promote sustainable practices across the palm oil sustainable chain value.

Our participation enabled us to:

- Exchange insights with international experts, clients, and strategic partners
- Strengthen our capabilities in key areas for continuous improvement
- Reaffirm our commitment to global standards in sustainability, transparency, and social responsibility

With renewed energy and circular economy, Industria Chiquibul remains dedicated to developing and implementing sustainable policies aligned with international standards and best practices. Together, we are shaping a more sustainable, competitive future for the palm oil industry and the markets we serve, protecting our planet, and investing in our people and their prosperity.

To learn more about our participation in the POCG, click on the following link to watch our Sustainability Manager talking about Industria Chiquibul's advances.

